

WORK-LIFE INTEGRATION AND THE FUTURE OF WORK

Live webinar on blending work and home life
and moving towards a more agile profession

You asked. We listened.

VWL has a growing number of members and supporters who are at varying stages of establishing and building their own law practices.

In response to requests to hear voices from women, including mothers, "who have gone out on their own", we are delighted to bring you a free lunchtime webinar on integrating work and home life.

This webinar will cover becoming a business owner and thought-leader, parenting and the law and how working from home policies are affecting women and changing the profession.

DATE: Friday, 5 June 2020

TIME

1:00pm - Webinar commences

1:45pm - Live Q&a

2:00pm - Webinar concludes

EMMA HEUSTON

In 2011, Emma was on the traditional corporate lawyer path working at a boutique Sydney law firm. But a near death experience changed her views on work/ life balance and made her realise that life is too short not to follow your dreams.

At 13 weeks pregnant, Emma was given a common anti-nausea drug in hospital and had a sudden cardiac arrest. Both Emma and her baby boy (who is now 8) survived but it put things into perspective for Emma.

In 2013, Emma moved her young family to far Northern New South Wales where she worked remotely as a Partner in a NewLaw firm for a number of years.

In 2018, Emma wrote the work from home bible, "The Tracksuit Economy: how to work productively and effectively from home" and was also named as "Thought leader of the Year" in 2018 by Lawyers Weekly at the Women in Law Awards for her work in the remote work space in the law.

LAUREN CASSIMATIS

Lauren Cassimatis, Director of Gallant Law is known as one of Victoria's leading criminal lawyers and an Accredited Specialist in Criminal Law.

In 2018 Lauren founded Criminal Law Mums, a community group designed to help women in the law achieve and sustain their dual ambition of being a successful lawyer and mum. In over a year Criminal Law Mums grew from 30 to 600 members Australia-wide, including Judges, Magistrates, law students and lawyers. Criminal Law Mums remains committed to boosting the well-being, confidence and careers of women in the law. Members have demonstrated that you can be a great mum and have a stellar career.
