

COMING TO THE BAR

Opportunities for Women in Legal Advocacy

Victorian Women Lawyers' Work Practices Committee are proud to present this panel discussion.

The event will feature a line up of engaging speakers who will provide their insights into the Bar Reader's course, finding mentors, making the transition to the Bar, obtaining briefs and tips on how to thrive in your chosen area of expertise.

This premiere networking and learning opportunity should not be missed!

Date Tuesday 10 October 2023

Time 5:30pm - 7:30pm

Location Clarence
Level 11, 456 Lonsdale Street Melbourne

Cost Free for VWL members
$10 for non-member

Register <https://vwl.asn.au/events-3/>

This event contains content that may meet the CPD needs of lawyers according to the Legal Profession Uniform CPD (Solicitors) Rules 2015, you may claim 1 CPD unit for each hour of attendance (breaks not included)

With thanks to our Event Sponsor

CLARENCE
WORKPLACES FOR PROFESSIONALS

Franceska Leoncio, List A Barristers: Franceska practises in commercial and public law with a particular focus on industrial relations and employment law. She has also advised and appeared in migration matters before the Federal Court, Federal Circuit Court and the Administrative Appeals Tribunal.

Priya Wakhlu, Foley's List: Priya was called to the Bar in May 2020, accepting briefs in commercial and defamation matters. She is the Assistant Convenor of the Women's Barristers' Association (WBA). Prior to signing the roll, Priya was an Associate in the litigation team of HWL Ebsworth Lawyers.

John Maloney, Green's List: John practises mainly in public law, including administrative and criminal matters. John is part of the VicBar's referral scheme which is available to existing or prospective barristers with a disability who wish to have a confidential discussion, obtain help and support or problem solve by speaking with an experienced barrister with an interest in, or an experience of, disability.

Evelyn Tadros, Youngs List: Evelyn has over 13 years of experience in litigation and resolving disputes and has a broad practice, predominantly in commercial, public and common law. She has also provided insights to Lawyers Weekly explaining the "advantages and disadvantages of being a parent at the bar".

The panel event will be moderated by Anna Svenson, Director & Principal Clerk, Svenson Barristers. Anna was a solicitor specialising in personal injury litigation for many years prior to becoming the owner of the business in November 2016.